Job Description

Our client, Prairie Skies Medical Imaging, is Regina's largest imaging practice. Owned by local radiologists, they have been providing comprehensive imaging services in 5 community-based clinics, two acute care hospitals, and multiple Southern Saskatchewan health centres for more than 50 years.

Prairie Skies Medical Imaging is seeking a Fellowship-Trained Women's Imaging Radiologist, or a radiologist with breast imaging experience to perform all aspects of breast imaging, including screening and diagnostic mammography, breast ultrasound, breast MRI, and breast procedures. Join the Prairie Skies team as a: Women's Imaging Radiologist.

The successful candidate will have the opportunity to grow their breast imaging practice by determining and implementing best practice and policy. Affiliated with the University of Saskatchewan, opportunities are available for research, rounds, teaching, and for an appointment as Associate Professor.

Prairie Skies offers the opportunity to work with a dynamic and supportive team in a diverse practice environment in both community and acute care facilities. This is a full time, partnership track position that covers primarily daytime shifts with equitable evening and weekend call responsibilities and above average earning potential.

Job Qualifications

Candidates will possess an MD, or equivalent, be eligible for licensure with the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan \(CPSS\), and will possess or be eligible for Fellowship with the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada \(RCPSC\). International Medical Graduates are welcome and encouraged to apply.
